Relevant G4S Entities in Australia

G4S Australia Holdings Pty Ltd operates directly through G4S Custodial Services Pty Ltd and G4S Integrated Services Pty Ltd as a group of Australian companies.

As these entities have common legal, finance, human resources and procurement functions and all operate in accordance with G4S Australia's standards, process and controls, no separate consultation was required in relation to those entities when preparing this Statement.

Supply Chain Overview

Suppliers are a critical part of what G4S Australia delivers to its customers and those in its care. As a result, it is essential that G4S partners with the best and most ethical companies and organisations.

G4S has engaged 673 registered suppliers from 5 countries with 99.7 per cent of the supplier spend from Australian suppliers. All of the international suppliers G4S engaged provide software services.

The key areas of direct procurement for G4S Australia's supply chain include health services, facilities management, catering, IT & telecommunications and learning & development and as shown in the accompanying table.

G4S Australia is contracted with its largest and critical suppliers on a long-term basis to ensure G4S Australia fulfils its obligations to serve its customers.

Understanding the Risks of Modern Slavery in the G4S Business and Supply Chain

G4S understands that our domestically focused supply chain does not preclude us from modern slavery practices which may exist in deeper levels of our supply chain (our supplier's supplier's), which we do not have visibility over.

Through the supply chain process outlined in this Statement, G4S Australia aims to identify and address modern slavery risks. This process has identified the following key categories of procurement spend with a high-risk of modern slavery prevalence:

1. Uniforms and Textiles
2. Cleaning and janitorial services

Managing Modern Slavery Risks in the Supply Chain

Commitment and approach

Everyone at G4S is expected to respect and protect the human rights of the company's employees, the people in our care, those who supply G4S, and those that live and work in the communities in which we operate.

G4S Australia strictly prohibits modern slavery and is committed to identifying and dealing with any instances in the company's supply chain. We accept this is a shared responsibility also requiring our suppliers to operate in an ethical way and to respect international human rights standards.

Our Supplier Code of Conduct sets out G4S Australia's requirements and expectations with respect to key areas of responsible procurement, including the prevention of modern slavery and human rights violations.

We are committed to the continual improvement of our systems and controls to help limit the risk that modern slavery and other human rights violations occur in any of our business operations or supply chains.

Our corporate governance framework

As part of our established Governance protocol, each of the G4S Australia entities are overseen by a Board of Directors with direct responsibility for the relevant reporting entities. The Allied Universal Parent Group Board is also responsible for overseeing G4S. The G4S Australia Procurement team is responsible for operational management of the Sustainable Procurement Program. During FY22, each relevant group board and the G4S Australia Executive Committee received regular progress updates on the Program.

Supply Chain Processes

G4S Australia recognises the challenge in identifying modern slavery and human trafficking risks or practices and understands that no organisation can be complacent nor have complete certainty that it is not present within its organisation or supply chain.

The sourcing of goods and services by G4S Australia is conducted in a fair and equitable basis on a variety of criteria, not limited to price. G4S Australia does not employ undue pressure or restrictions on suppliers that would lead to unsustainable costs.

We follow a consistent approach developed by the Allied Universal Group which was developed for implementation in higher risk jurisdictions. This commences with communicating our Supplier Code of Conduct which sets out G4S's requirements and expectations with respect to key areas of responsible procurement, including the prevention of modern slavery and human rights violations.

As a minimum, all suppliers to G4S are expected to agree to and comply with the principles set out in the Supplier Code of Conduct or to commit to a clear timeline for full implementation within their own organisation, and their associated suppliers and subcontractors.

To help ensure that these principles are met, we engage with suppliers, particularly those categorised as potentially high-risk with regard to modern slavery.

G4S Australia (as part of the broader G4S Group) has partnered with EcoVadis, a leading sustainability rating agency, to help us ensure that our suppliers in high-risk categories meet the ethical standards set out in our Supplier Code of Conduct. This program requires in-scope suppliers to complete an assessment tailored to their industry, size and location. The assessment covers 21 criteria across the four sustainability themes of environment, labour and human rights, ethics, and sustainable procurement.

The supplier's responses are analysed by EcoVadis, which provides both the supplier and G4S Australia with a detailed report setting out the supplier's sustainability performance. Where their performance does not meet the required levels, a corrective action plan must be submitted to G4S Australia to address any issues raised.

We work with those that have not achieved a satisfactory rating, or who declined to take part in the program, to address any shortfalls or encourage participation. Any in-scope supplier that fails to fully engage with the program will be excluded from our supplier database as a result.

There are no in-scope suppliers that did not meet the minimum requirements for the Labor & Human Rights section of the assessment. We continue to review and refresh the in-scope suppliers requiring assessment to ensure that it accurately reflects the suppliers operating in high-risk areas of our supply chain. G4S Australia continues to develop new precedent contracts that reserve the right to audit any of our suppliers and their subcontractors as part of any new contract of supply to confirm that the requirements set out in the Supplier Code of Conduct are in force.

In addition, G4S Australia plans to:

- ▶ develop a page on our Intranet for G4S Australia staff that collates all of G4S Modern Slavery training, resources and guides;
- ▶ maintain delivery of modern slavery training modules for relevant G4S Australia staff; and
- ▶ continue to educate colleagues about modern slavery in the supply chain and G4S Australia's commitments.

Employment labour risk

Subcontractors engaged to provide services within Australia must declare that they engage employees in accordance with the relevant industrial instrument and applicable Australian employment laws.

Compliance with the declaration will be monitored as the employees engaged by these businesses operate on our sites and work alongside our people.

Education and leadership

G4S Australia continues to explore best practice through attendance at presentations by legal and consulting firms on modern slavery statements.

Following the trial of a third party Modern Slavery education module, G4S Australia has prepared its own Modern Slavery education module to be completed by G4S Australia leaders and made available across the business.

The G4S Australia Modern Slavery working group (comprised of representatives from the human resources, legal and procurement teams) continue to meet and provide leadership and guidance on Modern Slavery matters, championing future improvement opportunities as well as evaluating the effectiveness of actions taken by G4S Australia.

G4S Policy Framework Supporting Modern Slavery Compliance

G4S Australia has a comprehensive set of policies to support the processes and commitments outlined in this Statement which relate to the prevention of modern slavery. These policies include:

Business Ethics Code

Our Business Ethics Code, sets out in detail how the G4S Australia values and standards should be applied in order to always do business in the right way. Following a comprehensive review, the new Code was launched early in 2021. Supported by mandatory training programs for all employees, the Code has been designed to be inclusive and accessible to all and relevant at every stage of the employee lifecycle.

The Code, and its accompanying training package, include specific references to human rights matters, including modern slavery and human trafficking.

Human Rights Due Diligence Framework

The G4S Human Rights Due Diligence Framework (the framework) has been developed as a support tool for G4S managers against which they can assess the human rights risks in relation to their area of the business as well as provide further guidance in terms of additional G4S policies and standards which relate to specific human rights risks.

Each section points out the key issues to consider, the various human rights which are related to those issues and the relevant external human rights standards on which the G4S policy and guidance have been developed. There is also an overview of the key due diligence questions which are addressed by G4S managers and any additional helpful G4S guidance or policies.

The framework applies in conjunction with the G4S Human Rights Policy and G4S Human Rights Guidance documents.

Human Rights Policy

The G4S Human Rights Policy and Guidelines, which were refreshed in early 2021, apply to all the International businesses, and define G4S Australia's commitment to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights and the ILO's Declaration on the Fundamental Rights at Work. They set our approach to human rights, including the responsibility of our management with regard to ongoing risk assessment, regular thematic audit and compliance monitoring.

Whistleblowing Policy

Our Whistleblowing Policy, explains that every G4S Australia colleague has a responsibility to ensure that we uphold our core values, adhere to the law and deliver against the important commitments we set ourselves, including those in our Business Ethics Code, Human Rights Policy, Supplier Code of Conduct and Human Resources Core Standards.

If colleagues have any concerns that our standards are not being met, they are encouraged to use Speak Out (g4s-speakout.com), our global whistleblowing service, to report them.

Speak Out can be used in confidence, in multiple languages, at any time of the day or night, by any employee, former employee or other third party such as people we work with.

Assessing the Effectiveness of Activities

G4S has not identified any modern slavery issues during the reporting period based on the processes used in the procurement processes and the organisation's robust frameworks.

A key tool in assessing the ongoing effectiveness of the actions taken by G4S in relation to modern slavery risks is the established confidential complaint and grievance mechanism available to employees, suppliers and others which allows individuals to voice concerns without retribution. G4S will continue to monitor any reports related to modern slavery and human rights noting that no reports relating to modern slavery were made during the reporting period.

This 2024 Modern Slavery Statement was approved by the Board of Directors of G4S Australia Holdings Pty Ltd, G4S Custodial Services Pty Ltd and G4S Integrated Services Pty Ltd on 17 June 2025 in accordance with the requirements of the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth).
