In today's interdependent global economy, trade and travel rely on the seamless flow of goods and people. With over 120 airports and 85 airlines in over 100 countries, the aviation industry is a critical part of the global economy.

Our Services

In addition to the traditional security services that every airport and airline requires – such as passenger and baggage screening – G4S's global service portfolio includes a range of solutions including passenger profiling, visa and document checking, canine cargo inspection, aircraft marshalling, and check-in services.

Staff training plays a vital role in ensuring that G4S's operations comply with constantly-changing legislation and that our security teams have all the capabilities they need, including responsibility for the introduction and maintenance of an evolving range of new security technology.

The uniformed teams who conduct body and baggage checks are part of a multi-layered security operation underpinned with customer service, much of it unseen, which every major airport needs to have in place in order to keep the skies safe for travellers.

G4S's involvement with a new airport's security begins, ideally, with risk consultancy and continues on to embrace the design of the entire facility or terminal, the choice of technology to be used within it, the supply, upgrading and maintenance of its security systems, the vetting security of our vast network of ports and airports. G4S secures more than 45 countries around the world.

of airport employees and the supply of personnel to provide security and associated services. With existing airports, we can also conduct a risk assessment and develop a response that works within the constraints of the infrastructure. Our emphasis is always on providing solutions which improve security but do not inhibit the flow of the growing number of airline passengers.

G4S already has a reputation for providing integrated security solutions in other sectors, combining risk consultancy and the use of technology and people to best effect. We believe that the most secure and beneficial solutions come from understanding the challenges of ensuring the safety of travellers and the efficiency of the international transport system whilst delivering a positive customer service experience to everyone involved.

By raising standards across the industry and by combining technological solutions with the expertise of some of the world's finest security professionals, G4S delivers solutions that meet today's stringent security requirements reliably, cost-effectively and in harmony with aviation operations.

Corporate Social Responsibility

At G4S, we believe we play an important role in society. Our size and scale means we touch the lives of millions of people across the globe, and we thus have a duty and desire to ensure our influence makes a positive impact on all our stakeholders.

In Canada, our local office teams are closely involved with charitable causes that help support the plight and challenges of Canadians from coast to coast.

Environment

We endeavour to be the leader in our industry in measuring, reporting and reducing the intensity of our greenhouse gas emissions. Globally, between 2009 and 2012, we achieved an overall reduction in carbon intensity of 16%, exceeding our stated target of 13%.
