Active Shooter / Workplace Violence

Beyond the immediate concern of everyday business risks lies the growing threat of active shooter situations and workplace violence. These violent situations are dynamic, complex and unpredictable risks, which differ from each other greatly. An organization's ability to effectively mitigate potential disasters is vital in a world of increasing uncertainty.

G4S recognizes the potential for these risks and the importance of being proactive. We employ experts with military, law enforcement and private-sector backgrounds held at the highest standards and offer an array of collaborative solutions to mitigate your risks based on individual needs and assessments. G4S' proactive risk mitigation strategies can position you to better protect employees, customers, students and others, allowing you to return to normal operations as soon as possible.

PREVENTIVE MEASURES

In organizations with multiple locations, fear could spread across the entire enterprise. A shooting or other act of violence at one location could result in a loss of business across all locations. These, and other, disruptive effects of a potential shooting underscore the need for effective business continuity and crisis management planning. G4S provides comprehensive workplace violence prevention and training programs customized to your unique circumstances. We can assist with individual program elements, such as employee training along with the creation of entire programs from the ground up, including the following:

- Advanced Workplace Violence & Active Shooter Training
- Background Investigations
- Threat / Risk Assessments
- Developing & Implementing Crisis Management & Emergency Response Policies and Procedures

INCIDENT RESPONSE

Fatal shootings of all types, including robberies and targeted attacks by coworkers, relatives and other personal acquaintances are a significant risk for employers. In 2015 alone there have been more than 300 mass shootings, according to the Gun Violence Archive. In active shooting incidents, assailants generally seek to do as much damage as possible, as quickly as possible, leaving devastating results in their wake.

The lasting emotional and psychological impact of mass shootings and workplace violence along with any resulting injuries or deaths can lead to workers' compensation, general liability and other casualty insurance claims and litigation. Affected organizations may also experience physical property damage, business interruption, expenses, and reputational harm. Should an incident occur, your employees need to be reached swiftly. G4S' training will help them properly react to reduce minimal impact.
