A Message from the President

Team,

With G4S News being published monthly, we are able to recognize more G4S Security Officers more often. Shout Outs will still hit inboxes every week while our new publication, Veterans Spotlight, will be coming every month.

We are always looking to recognize employees, so if you know of a Security Officer or team that is deserving of a mention in G4S News or a Shout Out, submit your suggestion through our new form (<https://goo.gl/KkWL5H>). The link is also included in every Shout Out. On Page 4 you'll see some highlights.

Speaking of employee recognition, at the beginning of March we held our annual Gold Club Awards, going to Puerto Rico for the first time (see page 7). Here we recognized our company's top-performing Managers of Business Development and General Managers.

Gaining new business can be a tough job. A sale is not something that is pursued but something that happens when you are totally focused on the customer. The Business Development representatives honored at Gold Club combined to sell 19,798 hours of new permanent business. They are the heartbeat of our company.

Our General Managers play a challenging role. They have to be part entrepreneur, part security expert, part technology expert, part psychologist, part accountant, part property manager, part salesman, part collections agent, and most of all be a goodwill ambassador for G4S.

A special congratulations to our General Manager of the Year, Michael Klipstein and our Manager of Business Development of the Year Kim Whitworth as well as Kerry Colvett for earning the Functional MVP Award, Henry Cujo for earning the Value Award and Blake Scott who was recognized as the Top Account Manager of the Year.

The impressive work of our Gold Club team and our entire organization throughout 2016 is truly commendable and worth every ounce of congratulation and appreciation. Thank you for your service.

Drew Levine
President
G4S Secure Solutions North America

Letters to G4S

From: Michael Deel, Director of Safety and Technology, Appalachian College of Pharmacy
Location: Oakwood, VA

"The security staff assigned to this site has been very professional and represents the interest of the College very well. The community has made several comments to the administration of the College regarding how professional the staff appears and how well they handle the smallest of crowds to the largest of crowds. We have worked with other companies in the past but have found that G4S provides the best qualified individuals with the most training necessary to ensure the College's best interests."

From: Luis Cortez, Physical Security Manager, Credit Karma
Location: San Francisco, CA

"I have had a great business partnership with G4S for the better part of the last 3-3.5 years. I've had various interactions with both the local San Francisco office and strategic accounts, and can honestly say that they are a great partner to have, responsive, attentive, and provide high-caliber candidates as part of their CPO program. They possess the ability to mobilize boots on the ground quickly, and also plan more strategic initiatives for our other more complex corporate security needs. G4S has provided services to great success both domestic (SF, Seattle, Austin, New York, North Carolina) and globally (Australia, Ireland, London & Tel Aviv)."

In The Bag

G4S's Robbie Byrne volunteers his time and music at veterans services

Robbie Byrne was nervous, and for good reason. He stood in the heart of Buckingham Palace staring at the Queen of England. She knew what he was doing and if he made one mistake, she'd know it.

He feared the worst. One false step, one false move of his fingers and she would know what he had done.

So he played on.

His fingers moved meticulously through every note on his bagpipe. His concentration at an all-time high. This was not the time to bring anything but his best. Through every tune, Byrne hit every note, careful not to make the smallest mistake.

Not everyone gets to play for the Queen of England with the British Scots Guards. But if you do, you'd better be ready.

Byrne was born in England to Irish parents when his family was on vacation. After spending much of his childhood in Dublin, his father, a construction foreman, relocated the family to England as the amount of work in Ireland began to diminish.

As a child, Byrne admittedly had more than enough energy, constantly finding his way into the wrong situation. To keep his son out of trouble, Byrne's father enlisted the help of a friend hoping that a new craft would keep his son in line.

"I fell in love with bagpiping," Byrne said. "All my energy went into that and I was never in trouble again. It was kind of a lifesaver, playing the bagpipes."

Beginning at age 12, Byrne began doing shows and learning as much as he could. At 16, Byrne auditioned to be a member of the British Scots Guards' Pipes and Drums, part of the Queen's Regiment.

Deployed to Northern Ireland, Byrne and the Pipes and Drums did everything the same as soldiers. They patrolled and were involved in combat, just like any other soldier.

"Forget the bagpipes," Byrne said of his time in combat. "You put your kilt down and you get in your soldiers uniform."

Byrne spent seven years with the Scots Guards, playing at some of the planet's most impressive venues, but playing in front of the Queen was a whole different adventure.

"The Queen has her own piper, so she knows all the tunes," said

Byrne. "She would lean back in her chair and look at the pipers. She's listening to see if you're making a mistake."

"Once when I was looking at her, she looked right at me, and I was thinking, 'I hope I don't make a mistake. If I do, I'm going to get dragged out of here and put in the Tower of London for days and days.'"

After retiring from the military, Byrne began looking for something new. His wife tragically lost her battle to cancer, and when visiting his sister in California, Byrne decided to make a permanent move himself.

Byrne, a Security Officer working for G4S in California for seven years, later married his current wife, Diane, a Bakersfield native, and started the Irish Traditional Music Session.

His connection to the military motivated Byrne to volunteer his time to play at veteran services in Bakersfield.

"I appreciate G4S giving me time off," said Byrne. "I love doing it anyway, being an ex-soldier."

As much as Byrne gives to the families, the moment returns it to him.

"When you're playing a funeral, and you see them lowered into the ground or cremated, it makes you realize just how short life is. How really short life is and you could die from anything. Anytime I came away from a funeral, you kind of realize life is short."

"You say good things to your wife, you're better to your kids. You have a better outlook. It makes you a better person. I come away from the funeral and realize I could be a better person."

Byrne, who is the author of four books, including an award-winning radio screen play in Europe, has also released six musical albums. But to him, he's not famous. He can look back and say he's done impressive things, but he realizes life is about so much more.

"People ask me, 'why aren't you living in Los Angeles in a mansion with 10 swimming pools?' It's not about money, not about how much you got or accumulate. It's about what you're giving to other people. And no matter what little on the scale, if everyone did a little, it would make the world a better place."

The achievements of the 2016 Gold Club Awardees for Secure Solutions North America were celebrated at this year's Gold Club event on March 2-5, 2017 at La Concha Resort in San Juan, Puerto Rico. It is with great admiration and thanks that we recognize these leaders.

G4S North America President Drew Levine wrote in his announcement: "I also want to recognize the employees across our region that are not on this list, but who contributed enormously to our success. In spite of considerable challenges, our overall performance in 2016 was exceptional and it is all of our efforts that gave G4S Secure Solutions North America these great results. The competition for Gold Club is always fierce and it is that spirit of healthy competition that keeps all of us striving to be better and, when we do that, we outpace our competition in the industry... On behalf of myself and the North America Secure Solutions leaders including Danny Grizzard, Andy Bedlack, Chuck Brock, Peter Panaritis, Tim Saunders, Gene Kurykendall and our Senior Vice Presidents and Vice Presidents of Business Development, well done and congratulations to all."
